Sensitive Gould Sues Hearty Piano Tuner

GLENN GOULD ... complained of handshakes

NEW YORK (AP) — Canadian concert pianist Glenn Gould filed a $300,000 damage suit in U.S. federal court Tuesday against Steinway and Sons, piano manufacturers, claiming he suffered physical injuries at the hands of a Steinway employee. Gould, of Toronto, also named employee William Hupfer, chief technician for Steinway, Gould said that on Dec. 8, 1959, he was seated in the office of a Steinway executive when Hupfer approached from behind and "wilfully and recklessly or negligently brought his forearms down with con-siderable force on the plain-tiff's neck and left shoulder, tiff's neck and left shoulder, driving the plaintiff's left elbow against the arm of the chair in which he was sitting."

Gould, who said he performs exclusively on Steinway planos, claimed that before the alleged incident in the executive's office he had complained to the company of the "un-duly strong handshakes and other demonstrative physical acts of Hupfer toward the plaintiff."

As a result, the suit said, Gould suffered injuries to his neck, shoulder and spinal discs and impairment in the use of his left hand.

The suit said Gould has "extreme and unusual sensitivity to physical contact," of which the Steinway company and

NOISY students in "Hecklers' Roost"—the gallery of Victoria University auditorium - were R. Desmond Sparham, national director of New Party clubs, matched wits at a noon-hour speech with the gang upstairs of troublemakers who plagued political speakers of every color.

I'm told that Sparham set out with the aim of rebuking the youths who had bothered Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Liberal leader Ray Perrault, and others.

When they started their usual tactics of hooting and throwing down lunch bags and other mis-siles, he talked in such a way as to get the ground-floor audience on his side He said that young adults had better get interested in the political affairs of their country, or before long they wouldn't have a country left. But the people upstairs weren't behaving like oung adults, he said. They were more like a group of unruly children.

"If anyone in the gallery is disgusted with the way the others are behaving, I invite them to come down on the floor," he said.

Six youths out of some 40 left and came down.

Then a group of self-appointed vigilantes went upstairs and urged the hecklers to give a speaker a fair hearing.

After that, only one or two lunch papers floated down, and there was silence—or near-silence—from the gallery.

Sparham, a wiry and sharp-witted ex-coal-miner from England (he was working underground at 14) had solved the heckler problem. Whatever you think of his political views, that Whatever you think of his political views, that was an achievement.

But of course the gang in "Hecklers' Roost" won't stay silent. They will soon be cackling again.

These aren't political hecklers, anyway. They direct their jeers and missiles at all parties. The useful kind of heckler is the one who throws pointed questions at the right time. But the kind that interrupts and drowns a speech is just a muisance.

I was in the UBC auditorium once when some body threw a dead cat at an unpopular visiting speaker. The cat didn't change anybody's viewpoint. It wasn't an effective argument.

Cause of Cause Anemia Problem By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD "Dear Dr. Molner: Please give me some information on pernicious anemia. Is there acure? And what is the cause? "Mrs. D. K." This disease, a progressive (and hence pernicious) loss of red blood cells, was discovered only a little more than a century ago, in 1849. Until only 34 years ago there was not any known treatment for it. However, in 1826 it was found that if the patient as found the anemalic conditions which result; second, intestinal tract disturbances ranging from a smooth, too-red tongue to jack of hydrochleric acid in the stomach, and diarrhoea; third, problems in the nervous system, such as numbness and weakness in the legs, lack of vibration sense, etc. Water Fees

Until only 34 years ago there was not any known treatment for it. However, in 1926 it was found that if the patient ate half a pound of liver a day, not overly cooked, the meat supplied whatever was missing from the system, and the pernicious anemia was thus kept under control.

ALMOST AS GOOD

The liver—and the medications developed since, so the patient doesn't have to eat 3½ pounds of liver a week—do not "cure" pernicious anemia, but they replace what is missing, and the disease thus disappears, as long as the treatment continues. And that's almost as good.

The Gravediggers

AST weekend several hundred topranking members of the CCF party and representatives of the Canadian Labor Congress met in Montreal in the first of a series of regional seminars designed to shape the constitution and policies of the New Party—officially to be born next

But rather than the gathering taking on the atmosphere of a baby shower happily preparing for the new arrival, it assumed all the appearance of a burial party for the CCF, complete with a chief mourner in the person of Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan.

It was none other than Mr. Douglas, long regarded as the patriarch of socialism in Canada, who sounded the first funereal note. The problems of 1960, he observed, were far dif-ferent than those which existed when the CCF was born. The implication was obvious—the CCF had outlived its usefulness. . .

Hard on the heels of the patriarch came Mr. Harry Weisglass of the United Steelworkers of America, CLC, who begged the New Party founders to rid themselves of all the old policies and principles. Another gravedigger, Professor J. C. Weldon, added his warning against national. added his warning against national-ization being used as a party plank.

The meaning was clear. The CCF, no longer able to move with the times, no longer able to adjust to today's conditions, must be buried . . buried with its principles, its ideals, its doctrines

This, then, was the view expressed. Not by rival political par-ties, not by anti-socialists, not by anti-laborites, not by rightists, but by the present leaders and supporters of the CCF party itself.

Just how strong this feeling has become among the adherents to the New Party—though how anyone can adhere to a party which has not yet been formed and has no policy, is not clear-is underlined by the fact that the national director of New Party clubs, Mr. R. Desmond Sparham, firmly stated in Victoria that the will not countenance anyone but a New Partyist running under name in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-

Spelling this out, he said that the candidate could not be just a CCFer running under a different banner, but would have to be selected by members of the CCF, trade unions and members of New Party clubs, which he was now forming. Otherwise the candidate presumably would not be official, and "would be letting the

New Party down."

Apparently such a candidate would need neither policy nor program, just as long as he is chosen by the right people. He certainly couldn't be expected to adhere to any party line because the party does not yet exist. All Mr. Sparham wants is for the public to vote for a label—the contents to be supplied later.

All this would seem to indicate that from Montreal to Victoria the New Party's biggest battle will not be against other organized political parties but right within its own ranks among the old-line followers who still hold that the CCF party's principles are as good today as they were 30

There will be more than a few who will not join in next summer to cheer: "The CCF is dead. Long live the New Party . . ."

Penalty of High Costs

T IS somewhat pointless for the shipyard workers' unions virtually to demand that the federal government build ships simply to provide them with jobs. It is not the policy of the government to subsidize policy of the government to subsidize private industry, and if an exception were made in the case of the west coast shipyards where would the government stand with the eastern yards? Where in fact would it all

This government and the one be-fore it have always spread shipbuild-ing jobs as evenly as possible, often to the disadvantage of the taxpayers. It is one thing to do this where there are ships to be built for necessary purposes, mainly of course the Cana-dian navy, but quite a different mat-ter of principle to be called on to issue contracts merely for make-work purposes.

Ships costing millions of dollars apiece aren't built for fun, when it is the country which has to foot the bifl. Canada no longer has a merchant marine and is not likely to have one again, since at current operating costs. Canadian owners cannot comcosts Canadian owners cannot com-

There will be a few contracts, awarded for the new coast guard service; but apart from that the federal source of work for the yards is the navy. There is a limit to the ships the navy can legitimately order in peace time, and when the role of the navy is constantly changing.

For the workers the hard fact is that they are paying the price of living in a high-wage area. Up to now they have been fairly fortunate; something has usually turned up when the outlook appeared grim.

But the unions cannot as a matter of right expect to have it both ways. Others before them have discovered that a high wage scale can be hollow when unaccompanied by jobs. The Pacific Coast yards have the highest wages in the country and, with the possible exception of the United States, in the world. When it is possible to have ships built for less in the eastern yards and for a very great deal less in other countries, notably Japan, the high-wage areas are ably Japan, the high-wage areas are ably Japan, the high-wage areas are bound to suffer.

It is a dreadful thing for skilled workers to be out of employment, and it is serious to the community and the country to have the existence of shipyards threatened, but the government can neither be blamed for that nor held responsible for creating jobs unless there is a demonstrable need for them.

Balkanization at the UN

RUSSIA has vetoed the entry of Mauritania into the United Nations. She has done so for her own strategic political reasons, but on other grounds the objection might be Mauritania is a stretch of Africa, mostly desert, with a population less than the city of Toronto, mostly no-mads. By no manner of means can be termed a nation in UN terms. The same might be said of other of the emerging African states, for whom independence seems to result in automatic enrolment in the UN.

Few of these new states can offer the slightest value to the world body; nor are they able to assume the re sponsibilities which the Charter cites as qualification for membership.

The UN is reducing its stature by too easy membership; it is becoming a conglomeration of Balkan states. And this assembly-line method of entry might easily be its ruination.

It is nothing short of farcical for instance that a group of 750,000 people, most of whom will not have the slightest conception of what the UN is or represents, should even be considered for membership; that it should have the same voting power as the U.S.A., the U.S.S.R., or any other of the real member states the UN. Independence at the UN is running riot.

And yet on the outside is a na-n of 600,000,000 people, China, which is barred from its councils. The UN is inviting its own demise by the current absurdity of its membership.

Interpreting the News

Morocco and Mauritania

By HAROLD MORRISON, Canadian Press Staff Writer R USSIA'S veto against the admittance Morocco which has ordered the Amer-of Mauritania to the United Nations has the aspects of a blunt manoeuvre to woo Morocco away from the West.

The United States is quick to label the veto as a major blunder which will arouse wide African antagonism against Moscow, but a Canadian official suggests the American view may be precipitate and a bit exaggerated.

Undoubtedly, some parts of Africa will interpret the veto as a strike against freedom and independence. To that extent Russian diplomacy in Africa is bound to suffer loss of prestige,

But in the Canadian's view Russia may have concluded that for the present it has gone as far as it can hope to go in its drive for African conquest. Russia has obtained a working relationship with the governments of Guinea and Ghana and the support of some factions in The Congo.

North Africa appears more volatile.

icans to close their military bases there by 1963 or sooner, has long argued it is the rightful owner of Mauritania. This the Western powers refused to concede.

Mauritania, on the northwest coast of Africa, is an area of some 419,000 square miles, mostly desert, and has a population of 750,000, many of them nomads.

In terms of military stategy, Morocco is valuable for its proximity to Gibraltar, gateway to the Mediterranean, Russia is reported to have provided Morocco with gifts of jet fighters and bombers, And significantly, Morocco warmly hailed the Russian veto and complained bitterly of the lack of Western sympathy to Moroccan claims to Mauritania. Instead of showering its aggressive efforts over the entire continent, Russia may be employing the strategy of piecemeal attack, of concentrating her strength in areas where prospects of success are greatest.

Thinking Aloud

. . of shoes-and ships-and sealing wax-of cabbages and kings." By TOM TAYLOR

You never know how it is that I one day you say something you wouldn't say on another day, and when pressed for the reason the only excuse you offer is that you must have been in a different mood.

Mood; there's the dictator for you of more actions than history ever takes note of. Indeed it may often go wrong because it minimizes this

When we get out of bed on the wrong side, as they say, then what follows is due to mood. Getting out on the right side presages a different outlook and, perhaps, a different set of decisions. Early on in the day anyway, before one has mellowed to veeter frame of mind.

Mood, then, dictates one's outlook, and of course one's pen. Just the other night a friend puzzled over some word I had used in this column —which wouldn't be strange since I puzzle over some myself—but he couldn't remember what the topic had been. Neither could I so we didn't get very far.

* * *

But I was constrained, for this gave me the guilty feeling that I had contradicted myself. Not, frankly, that it spoiled my evening for I can't remember everything I put in this space. And just as well; if I did I'd struck dumb with fright.

For, of course, depending on mood as I do, this means that I may frequently seem inconsistent.

However consistently isn't the jewel it is cracked up to be; and in any event no man is entirely consistent. 'Tis against human nature

Just by the way I am surprised that politicians don't recognize this; if they did they could get out of some awkward corners.

When accused of reversing themselves, for instance, they are never caught off base for they've a well developed quality of bamboozling the accuser with a rebuttal of swiftlythought ambiguities. But if they just said nicely that they had changed their views the questioner would be so taken aback he'd be speechless.

Supposing that one day I said of boys, and small girls too naturally, that they ain't what they used to be, and then two weeks later I praised them to the skies-well, sistency. And it's all because I take on different moods.

Of course I might follow my own advice to the politician and say I had changed my mind, but I prefer in this instance to blame it on mood.

To a not inconsiderable degree, T suppose, mood is the governing factor of what appears-here each morning. Knowing myself I can never predict what I'll be thinking at any given moment. Which happily is just as well. To be the same all the time would be a distinct drawback; it would freeze my pen. As I said, too, it would violate nature. You see how it is. I hope you do of least else this exercise in alibi building is an awful waste of time and it happens that I'm in a bit of a hurry at the moment. If there is. to be growth there must be change. Sometimes the growth is questionable but leaving that aside you wouldn't want the sun to shine every day, would you? After all you are not the tourist bureau.

And change brings contradiction and so-called inconsistencies, according to the mood of the passing days and years.

Out of which foregoing comes specious reasoning, I daresay. I wouldn't blame my friend if he so concluded, anyway. But at least he can't say I haven't tried my own hand at a little bamboozling.

Inevitability of American Influence

Below is a sampling of United States editorial opinion on the state of relationships the United States, political accounts and caltural

NEW York Herald-Tribune—Ca-nadians are understandably un-easy when they reflect that half their manufacturing, more than half their mining and smelting, and three-quarters of their petroleum and natural gas industry are controlled by for-eigners, even if they are the most friendly of foreigners. American influence is overwhelming in many respects in daily life, too.

Television, magazines (two American magazines get 43 per cent of all advertising money spent on periodicals in Canada), sport—these come for the most part from across the border. Naturally, they tend to erode features which are distinctively Canadian, and Canadians do not like it.

Not that this is our fault or that we should be blamed for it. We have 10 times the population and a dynamic popular culture which has left its mark not only on Canada but on places like France and Siam. Ca-nadians acknowledge this. They understand the answer is a dynamic culture of their own which they, and not we, are responsible for. nd not we, are responsible for.

Whether it is capital or comic books that we export to Canada, Canadians do have a right to be taken seriously, heard sympathetically, and in general treated like the huge, rich, bounding, and above all fraternal, nation that they are. A little effort on our part will bring great rewards, and Senator ninistration will wise if it makes it.

ST. LOUIS Post-Dispatch—Canada's economy is in trouble, and the United States has every reason to want to be of help. For if the recession in the Dominion, already more severe than our own, is prolonged or grows worse, the ill effects will be felt in our own country as well. Our exports will suffer, for Canada is our best customer, buying a fifth of the goods sold beyond our borders. Income from invest ments will suffer, for both firms and individuals are heavily involved in

What can the United States do to help? It can buy more from Canada, particularly of processed and manuparticularly of processed and manufactured items. Our present tariffs discriminate against these products in favor of commodities in their natural or semi-finished state, which deprives the Canadian of the greater income their country could obtain from carrying processing and manufacturing farther along, and keeps their country industrially in a kind of colonial relationship to our own.

We can try again to work out methods of disposing of our wheat surpluses abroad which will avoid depriving Canada of its natural markets. Wheat means enough to the United State's economy, but it means even more to Canada's.

It would be encouraging to see the new administration bring a fresh ferment of agenuine interest and

UN's Paramount Topic

Disarmament and Controls

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

DISARMAMENT continues to be the paramount topic of the UN's General Assembly. Nearly every speech refers to the question and chev plan.

The whole discussion is unrealistic. History records not a single genuine agreement on disarmament. course, there have been periods in which military forces were reduced. However, these were always the con-sequence of satisfactory political settlements. When tensions are easing, nations are unwilling to shoulder unproductive defence expeditures.

Disarmament thus is the conse quence, not the condition of peace. All delegates must know this but, mostly for demagogic reasons, they continue their shadow-boxing.

* * The main difference between East and West on disarmament remains the question of controls. The Atlantic powers demand that they be immediate and effective. Communists oppose the whole principle. They call inspection espionage. They insist that the Free World should accept their word without asking questions. They pretend to ignore that Western plans would be applied identically to all concerned.

The Russian attitude creates suspicion. Belief is spreading that the Kremlin opposes inspection in order to hide secret weapons. These would be used the moment the free nations would let down their guard. This general and understandable fear nevertheless seems to lack a factual basis.

Soviet technique, despite some scientific records like sputnik and lunik, is backward compared to U.S. achievements. At this hour the Americans have numerous satellites in outer space and the Soviets probably a dead body. This reminds us of the Second World War. Then, too, the dictators had the finest prototypes of aircraft and tanks. Since they lacked the basic industrial structure, they had no means to compete with the mass production of the Western Hem-

Furthermore, the numerous U-2 flights have given the necessary information for an accurate assessment of the Soviet potential. During sevable of shooting down the American reconnaissance planes. What hap-pened in Sverdlovsk on May 1 was the equence of a material mishap and not an achievement of Soviet de-fences. The U.S.S.R. was continuously photographed with the most

These never showed a base indi-cating the existence of new secret

These facts reveal the relative military weakness of the U.S.S.R. Hence Soviet hesitation. For years Khrush chev has threatened the world-in Suez, in Hungary, in Cuba. By doing so, he impresses not only the West erners but even more so the neutrals and his own Chinese allies. His bluff has been highly profitable. It would become impossible under a system of effective international inspection.

This is the most logical explanation of the Kremlin's attitude toward international control of disarmament. It is based on what we know concerning the Soviet Union. We should note also that Moscow has become more adamant with the deterioration of relations with Peiping. Obviously, a China fully informed on Soviet weaknesses would become a much more dangerous rival than it is at present.

In this perspective a re-evaluation. of relations with the U.S.S.R. seems to be called for. All too often the West has pursued a policy of weakness out of fear of the enemy's imaginary forces. We suffer from an inferiority complex. The time has come, in the face of Khrushchev's growing difficulties, to understand that we are stronger than he is. We shall never reach constructive negotiations with the Kremlin's able dip lomats until the Russian leaders realize that their bluff is no longer frightening the world.

practical activity to this subject. For if the United States learned anything from the harrowing experience of the thirties it should have been that it is idle to try to cope with international economic ills by retreating within national boundaries.

DETROIT TIMES - Canada has advanced an interesting idea in the proposal before the UN political committee for a special group composed of non-nuclear nations to study ways of getting disarmament negotiations out of deadlock.

It seems to us worth a try.

Any serious study of the U.S.-Western versus Soviet plans would establish the reasonable and realistic approach of our side, and the demagogic, propaganda content of the Russian demand for total world disarmament in four years.

HARTFORD COURANT — The minister of justice of the Canadian government has just Issued a report on a completely new orientation of the penal system of that country. From now on the emphasis will not be on revenge so much as on work, discipline, and recreation. Under the new system, it is explained, discipline would change but would not necessarily be weaker. Work itself is a form of discipline, and is particularly needed by those who try to short-circuit work to obtain things needed or wanted the easy way...

THE scruffiest, shoddiest, shab-I biest, phoniest hundred acres in the whole world is that section of New York City lying between 45th and 42nd Streets at Times Square, and known in song and story as Broadway. It is the theatre centre of the city to which swarm each night at eight, in taxis, cars and afoot, the tens of thousands of tourists and no doubt a considerable number of local resi dents. Overhead, gaudy moving neon signs blaze on the faces of all the buildings, throwing a garish light on the scene very like that of the carnival alley at a fall fair. The solid throng of people trudging on each other's heels amid this colossal assemblage of the dull, the commonplace and the corny, is made up of men and women all wearing the expression you see at quite small fall fairs. They look let

Within this hundred acres of strldent fraud, the shops are dingy, tawdry, gimcrack. There are even those arcades where you put a nickle in the machine and peek. There are narrow little holes in the wall where the merchandise is the sort men usu-

America's Debts

We are always being told about what is owed to the U.S.A.; nothing is ever mentioned about what the U.S.A.

During the Civil War, for instance, taxpayers of the United Kingdom lent the States tremendous sums of money. This debt was repudiated and has since been ignored, though with the accumulated interest it would wipe out all war borrowings.

In the last two wars a list of materials, ships, etc., lent to them would be interesting. The value of the lives sacrificed in the years before they became participants M. V. STANDISH.

Good Samaritan

There passed away last week in James Bay, one of d's gentlemen I refer to Willie Newcombe, to us lerly people of Fairfield and James Bay, a Good Samaritan to so many.

Early mornings, late at night, irrespective of storm or cold, one would see him with his old army haversack slung over his shoulder containing a few tools, or his pushcart with a few lengths of lumber, off to do a little repair work, fix a window, door, or a leak in a roof or chop, a bit of wood for some poor old soul. All of this without a thought of remuneration.

One was lucky if you could get him to render an account. When he did, it would be for less than half of what he was entitled to. What an example to so many of us, these days. May God rest his soul, and plant a little of this spirit in a few more of us.

Wipe Out All Laws

Strange that editors open their columns to charitable endeavors, paying tribute to the grace of God, upon which the Christian commonwealth was founded some 1960 years ago. "Though I have all faith so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing," (1, Corinthians, 15). Possessing that sovereign attribute,

Between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 laws on our statute books. Wipe them all out, substitute the imperative requisite for peace on earth, "That ye love one another," to combat fear, and greed, and corruption, and the whole calender of mortal vices and weaknesses, and there would be some hope of deliverance from some men's madness and inhumanity.

THE DANGERS OF

during the past year in influential quarters, warning against the over-expansion of Canadian productive capacity, misdirection of such capacity and of over-borrowing, particularly for capital purposes and especially when such borrowing is done in foreign capital markets. I think it is well that these warnings have been uttered and that these matters of fundamental concern have been brought into the forefront of public discussion. But at the same time I cannot but feel that so much emphasis on the dangers of over-expansion and of over-borrowing, domestic or foreign, may also be conducive to a state of timorous apprehension in which all expansion, and all increases in indebtedness, become, as it were, suspect.

"This country has attained its economic stature and living standards in no small measure by virtue of having abundant natural resources for which there are markets elsewhere, and which must be developed on a large scale and by large injections of capital, if they are to be developed at all. It is not unnatural that to some extent the necessary capital has been provided from outside our own borders by those who need the resources that are being developed.

"Moreover, Canada as a world trader must keep pace with the technological advances that are going on around her. I suggest that if we are to continue to develop our resources and keep abreast of innovation and modernization by our competitors, we shall do well not to be too fearful of prudent expansion and improvement, and of the financing that is entailed."

Fish them from the Craigflower Bridge, or from the wharf or banks below the Tillicum Road bridge over the Gorge.

Emil Schultz, one of the old-timers who fishes the Gorge each year, went down Sunday for the first time this year and jigged a boxful in two and a half hours. Eighty-four-year-old George Bridgewood, who has fished the Gorge heiring for 30 years, was on the wharf giving advice and selling the proper jigs to those who didn't know how to fish them.

"We used to get 500 to 600 a day," he said.

"December and January is the best time..., the herring are big now," he said.

SOF PLACE D'ARMES, MONTREAL

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

We seem to be suffering this year from more than our usual share of troubles with the fruits and vege-tables placed in winter storage. All sorts of queer rots, moulds and mildews are appearing, judging from the letters which come to my desk every day. Just why these storage troubles should be so common this year, I haven't the foggiest idea—I recall any exceptional weather conditions at harvest time

Some of these fungus infections are old enemies in fresh disguises, such as the spores which give rise to the condition known as Brown Rot when the fruit is on the tree. This will often show up only after the fruit has been picked and stored. Sometimes this same disease attacks Sometimes this same disease attacks in a different way and the fruit, as it succumbs to the infection, becomes a bag of skin filled loosely with its mushy rotten contents.

Quite a lot of these storage troubles can be avoided during har-vesting by making sure that any diseased or damaged specimens are either discarded and burned or set aside for immediate use. Nearly all these storage diseases are "catching" and, when infected specimens are packed in closely with and, when infected specimens are packed in closely with healthy fruit, rots and moulds can spread wildfire.

In view of the prevalence of these troubles, it would certainly be a wise precaution to make a careful inspection of the fruit and vegetable stores.

In addition to the more obvious spotes. In addition to the more obvious spots of rot or mould, look for mechanical damage such as bruises, for these too become sources of infection.

Any suspicious-looking specimens should be sent to the kitchen for immediate use and every effort made to keep the remaining fruits well separated.

As I mentioned

As I mentioned earlier in the sea-son, wrapping the individual fruits in paper has much to recommend it, as this in a sense puts every paper has much to recommend it, as this in a sense puts every specimen in a little quarantine station or isolation hospital of its own, pre-venting the spread of infection through the store. If you find signs of trouble when you inspect your stored fruit, it isn't too late even now to wrap the remainder.

With an eye to next year's prob-lems, it is a good idea too to look over all your fruit trees for any brown and mummified fruit remain-ing on the branches. It is on these ing on the branches. It is on these and on any windfalls lying beneath the tree that the disease spores are carried over from one season to the next. Plums are very common offenders in this way and special efforts should be made to clear all plum trees of any such mummified fruit. All windfalls should be gathered up and either burned or huried deeply.

gathered up and either burned or buried deeply.

Better keep a careful eye on the potatoes in storage too. I haven't had many reports reaching my desk had many reports reaching my desk yet concerning rotting potatoes, but quite a few readers told me earlier that green tomatoes brought indoors to ripen went bad rather quickly, and the symptoms sounded suspiciously like those of potato blight. This disease attacks both tomatoes and potatoes and, when we find it on the one, it is wise to keep a careful lookout for similar symptoms on the other member of the family.

Armed Services

It's Be-Kind-to-Forces Month

OTTAWA (CP) — Among politicians, this is be-kind-to-the-armed-forces month.

Every December, every member of the armed forces has the opportunity to declare his domicile—that is, where his vote will be recorded in the

This declaration has nothing to do with where a serviceman enlisted or where he makes his home at the present time. It is a statement of where he intends to live once he is back on civvy street, whether that be one or 20 years from now or whether the in-tention is ever carried out.

Supposing — just supposing—that 15,000 members of the armed forces this month declared their domicile as Prince Albert, Sask., the riding which Pri me Minister Diefenbaker represents in the Commons.

By so doing and voting against the government in the next election, they could eliminate Mr. Diefenbaker from the federal scene, at least until another seat could be found for him to contest. The prime minister's plurality in the 1958 general election was 12,713 votes.

Naturally, this is only a wild sup-position. But everything would be perfectly legal.

perfectly legal.

If the 119,000-member armed forces took a dislike to Defence Minister Harkness, they would have a harder time getting rid of him. He had a larger plurality—25,446 votes—than any other cabinet minister in the last election. His riding is Calgary North.

Traditionally, servicemen ask that their votes be recorded in ridings where their home towns are situated.

* * *

But there are members of the armed forces who select a different riding each December. And some have not changed their choice for 20 years or more though they've never been in that riding in all that time.

In the last two general elections—in 1957 and 1958—the armed forces vote was predominantly Liberal.

This anti-government vote can be fairly simply explained:

While the Conservatives were in opposition in Ottawa for 22 years, they naturally criticized Liberal defence policy.

they naturally criticized Liberal defence policy.

As time went on, the services came to regard these criticisms as levelled against the armed forces themselves which, of course, they were not.

* * * *

The corollary is that if the Conservatives remain in power long enough and the Liberal's keep criticizing defence policy, the service vote will swing against the Liberals.

The services, incidentally, resent the fact that their vote is counted separately, though officials say this is the only practical means of giving them the vote at all.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than a year ago, when the TV quiz show scandals burst a dam through which all sorts of criticism was levelled against the major U.S. networks, executives promised all sorts of reforms.

Not only were they going to clean up such unsavory messes as rigged shows, free plugs and payola, but they were going to tackle the matter of TV violence and brutality.

Dummy's ace won the opening diamond lead and South ruffed a low diamond. Next, South led the heart queen! He rightly placed West with at least four hearts to the king. West covered the queen with the king, dummy's ace won and, sure enough, dropped East's singleton jack. Now the club queen was played. West had to follow to three subsequent club leads, on the last of which dummy sluffed a spade. Declarer led a spade, West took the queen and existed with a spade, However, nothing could stop South from ruffing another diamond with the heart nine and making two more frump tricks on the board for a total of ten tricks.

The errors had been perpetrated by both sides, but the comedy was seen only by North-South. the comedy was seen on

Main Topic at Rally

Town planning for Saanich was the main topic for debate at last night's all-candidate meeting held in the CCF Hall on Richmond Street.

Some 35 people turned out to hear views of 10 council candidates and two school trustee candidates. The meeting was arranged by A. E. Horner, 1729 Kisber, a ratepayer.

Among 12 candidates seeking two seats on council are:

Frank Beamish who proposed concessions such as "cheap property" to encourage industry and commerce to locate in the municipality. He accused the present council of "just talking about" the problems of attracting firms to come to Saanich.

NEW YORK (AP) — Canadian concert pianist Glenn Gould filed a $300,000 damage suit in U.S. federal court Tuesday against Steinway and Sons, piano manufacturers, claiming he suffered physical injuries at the hands of a Steinway employee.

Gould, of Toronto also name ed employee William Hupfer, chief technician for Steinway, Gould said that on Dec. 8,

Gould said that on Dec. 8, 1959, he was seated in the office of a Steinway executive when Hupfer aproached from behind and "wilfully and recklessly or negligently brought his forearms down with considerable force on the plaintiff's neck and left shoulder, division the plaintiff's left the plaintiff's l driving the plaintiff's left elbow against the arm of the chair in which he was sitting." The suit said Gould has "extreme and unusual sensitivity to physical contact," of which the Steinway company and Hupfer had been apprised. Gould who sald he per-forms exclusively on Steinway pianos, claimed that before the alleged incident in the executive's office he had con ed to the company of the "un-duly strong handshakes and other demonstrative releases other demonstrative physical acts of Hupfer toward the plaintiff."

As a result the suit said. Gould suffered injuries to his neck, shoulder and spinal discs and impairment in the use of his left hand.

Gould claimed that to date he has spent $3,600 for medical expenses and lost $21,400 in earnings.

ST. LOUIS — American League owners threw the expansion problem squarely in the lap of baseball commissioner Ford Frick yesterday and there appeared no alternative but for him to say yes to their demand for entering Los Angeles in 1961.

Thwarted by the National League in their efforts to move into Los Angeles, the American League owners told Frick they "insist" on the right to put a team in the Callifornia city, and if there is no change on either side it will be up to Frick to cast the deciding vote in today's meeting.

ST. LOUIS — American I league, meaning one team would be idle every day.

The Los Angeles franchise has already been granted by the American League to a group headed by cowboy star Gene Autry. It is also expected that former Milwaukee boss Fred Haney will be the club's player personnel director and select its players from the talent pool at the Dec. 13 player allotment meeting.

GLENN GOULD ... complained of handshakes

Hearty Piano Tuner NEW YORK (AP) — Canadian concert pianist Glenn Gould filed a $300,000 damage suit in U.S. federal court Tuesday against Steinway and Sons, piano manufacturers, claiming he suffered physical injuries at the hands of a Steinway ampleyed.

njuries at the hands of a Steinway employee.

Gould, of Toronto, also named employee William Hupfer, chief technician for Steinway, Gould said that on Dec. 8, 1959, he was seated in the office of a Steinway executive when Hupfer aproached from office of a Steinway executive when Hupfer aproached from behind and "wilfully and recklessly or negligently brought his forearms down with considerable force on the plaintiff's neck and left shoulder, driving the plaintiff's left elbow against the arm of the chair in which he was sitting."

Gould, who said he performs exclusively on Steinway pianos, claimed that before the alleged incident in the executive's office he had complained to the company of the "unduly strong handshakes and other demonstrative physical acts of Hupfer toward the
